DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 7/26/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The structure of the device of Yoon is inherently capable of meeting the added limitations in claims 43 and 61.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 43, 44 and 61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoon (US 5,379,888).

Yoon discloses a medical device (20) having an elongate catheter (22) with an external surface and an internal surface defining an internal lumen (Figure 3) and having a compound slit located at a generally hemispherical distal end portion of the catheter and extending from the external surface to the internal surface (unlabelled Figure 2). The slit of Yoon is biased closed and would inherently open due to difference in pressure between the lumen and the ambient. The slit of Yoon is also configured to inherently allow the flaps to flex into the lumen when the ambient pressure exceeds the pressure inside the lumen.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim 45 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoon in view of Phelps et al. (US 6,419,659).

Yoon discloses all the limitations of claim 45, as discussed above in 3, with the exception of a collar disposed adjacent to the distal end of the catheter.

Phelps teaches a catheter (10) with a collar (46) disposed adjacent its distal most end.

Therefore, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the medical device of Yoon with the collar as taught by Phelps.

Doing so would provide an attending physician with a means for determining the location of the catheter by magnetic or electromagnetic means (Phelps column 4, lines 30-35).

5. Claim 46 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoon in view of Desai (US 5,857,464).

Yoon discloses all the limitations of claim 46, as discussed above in 3, but discloses four flaps (28) or two flaps (128) instead of a tricuspid flap configuration.

Desai teaches a catheter having a distal end valve (40) with three flaps (42).

Therefore, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the valve of Yoon with three flaps instead of two or four flaps, as there is no criticality to the number of flaps used in the end valve of Yoon, and Desai teaches that a tricuspid valve arrangement would perform equally well. It would be a simple matter of choosing a design for an end valve from existing designs known in the art, when each design would perform equally well. This skill is well within the capability of one of ordinary skill in the art.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
